BAITHAK - MAIN LODGE

The Baithak or Main Lodge looks on to stunning views of the Bandhavgarh fort and forests of the Tiger Reserve. A refreshment bar with a large selection of coffee and teas, it is the center of our guest activities. Earth walls, roofs supported by mature Sal wood rafters and tiles from the 1930's, this is an intimate lodge with open spaces, details of local architecture blending beautifully with nature.

LIBRARY AND ART GALLERY

Situated in the Baithak, our art gallery and library has a collection of books, wildlife and tribal photographs, also a collection of wildlife art recording the lives of individual Tigers of Bandhavgarh over the past 15 years. The photographic record provides an astonishingly lucid insight into the recent history of the Tiger Reserve.

ADIYOGI HALL & PANCHTATVA COTTAGES

These structures facilitate the yoga, meditation & wellness programmes that are conducted at the lodge by Yogic Teachers & expert masseurs. Do write to us for detailed programmes and courses that we offer. The lodge also offers weekend programmes for detox & stress management.

KITCHEN & DINING

Our Kitchen offers home-cooked Indian food, fresh spice and vegetables from our organic gardens and local villages add that extra zest in our traditional flavors. We also offer a small selection of pastas and sandwiches for guests who may want a break from the 'constant curry'. Meals are served inside the Baithak (Main Lodge) and also in Robin's Nest under the Mahua tree. Meals may also be served in the Nursery or alternatively, guests may dine in the privacy of their tent verandahs. A favorite dinner spot is our candle lit terrace - a special place for a tranquil dinner and stargazing.

SAFARI SHOP

The in-house safari shop has a selection of craft from across India, wildlife art and photographs are also on sale, for those with a deep interest in art we can organize a private sitting with artists & artisans from the area.

CONSERVATION AT CAMP

A reforestation project that has taken on a piece of barren land, devastated by overgrazing and logging. We have succeeded in bringing back the forest but to make it a sanctuary for the rare and fast disappearing indigenous trees and plants of the jungles of central India, one of the last remaining homes of tigers in the wild. A walk through our botanical sanctuary, reforestation project and small farm. It will bring alive the many myths and legends surrounding the diverse flora and fauna of Central India and a chance for direct contact with the local community who are integral to all aspects of the project.

'WILD ABOUT PLANTS' NURSERY OF INDIGENOUS TREES

In the heart of the project is a large nursery of indigenous plants that provides growing stock for other deficient areas and reforestation projects nearby. With more than 90 species of indigenous trees and annuals, the nursery is the backbone of the reforestation project. Nearly all the plants have been grown from seed at the nursery. We encourage guest to plant trees and help us grow the forests.

WEATHER

Central India has extreme climatic fluctuations. Winter months of December, January and February, morning game drives and late evenings are biting cold, you would enjoy the comfort of blankets and hot water bottles that are provided for morning drives. The afternoon sun is wonderful, days are crisp, warm and sunny. As we move into April summer is beginning to set in and the shade is welcome. As water holes dry up by May, wildlife is concentrated in smaller areas of the park and Tiger sighting gets better but with that the heat is extreme, afternoon temperatures can touch 46°C. The best time to visit is from October to March, the jungle is looking beautiful after the monsoons, green flushes of new leaf on the bamboo and thick undercover, misty mornings and crisp sunlight make the forest breathtakingly beautiful.

CLOTHING

There is no official dress code however, when out game viewing, we suggest muted clothing and colors that would blend with nature. October to mid-November: Light fleece and a sweater or shawl November to end February: Warm Fleece, warm sweater, a light jacket, are a must, gloves and a warm cap are always welcome comforters. March to May: Shorts or light trousers and ideally cotton-clothing, a light fleece is advisable as early mornings can still be chilly.
